Prepare for the Rainy Season

The rainy season usually starts in June and continues until the middle or the end of July. In order to protect citizens from flood damage as early as possible, the city will issue a three phase-evacuation system for flooding. You are advised to protect yourself from any possible disaster by preparing for it well in advance by getting information from TV broadcasts, radio broadcasts, or a mobile phone.

Information Regarding Preparation for Evacuation (Hinan Junbi Johô)

- Begin preparations for evacuation.
- Pay attention to TV and radio broadcasts for information.
- At this time, shelters will be established. People who require extra time to evacuate should use their own judgment and can begin evacuating.

Evacuation Recommendations (Hinan Kankoku)

- Begin evacuation to a designated evacuation facility.
- The second floor of your house may also be safe.
- If you have any neighbors who have difficulty in evacuating, please help them as the need arises.

Evacuation Orders (Hinan Shiji)

Evacuate immediately to a designated evacuation facility.

Landslides

During prolonged rainfalls or heavy downpours, it is advisable to be well aware of the dangers of landslides. There were some cases in which lives have been saved by predicting possible landslides through observing precursory phenomena and evacuating before landslides occurred. The following types of phenomena have been the decisive factors. Take due precaution and try to evacuate as soon as possible if you feel any danger.

Does Your House Have Fire Alarm Devices?

It has been one year since the law was changed requiring every house, condominium, apartment building, or other type of residential building to have fire alarm devices installed. If your household has not been equipped with fire alarm devices yet, they should be immediately installed. Fire alarms can be purchased at electrical appliance stores or DIY shops (Home Centers) for ¥3,000 - ¥5,000 per unit.

The City's Safety Measures against Radiation Contamination

The city monitored atmospheric radiation levels at 179 locations including community centers and children's halls from April 18th to May 1st. The results showed that the measured values of all the monitored areas were within the prefecture's designated safe standard level (0.016 Using a Nal scintillation counter for accurate - 0.16 microsievert/hour).

monitoring

Radiation contamination of the soil from rice paddies at 22 locations in the city's 11 districts was also monitored in April and May. The measured values at 17 locations were much lower than the national designated safe standard level and no radioactive materials were detected at the rest of the locations.

From April 9th, the city has also been monitoring radiation contamination for ingredients to be used for school lunch four times a week. So far no radiation contamination has been detected.

Q&A for resolving conflicts between employers and non-Japanese employees from abroad

Q: I work from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. with a one-hour lunch break every day. The other day I accepted a request from my boss to work an extra hour and worked the additional hour. But I found that I haven't received any increased overtime wages for that. I think that the Labor Standards Law stipulates increased wages for overtime work.

A: The Labor Standards Law stipulates increased wages for overtime work when it exceeds legal working hours, which is usually 8 hours a day or 40 hours a week.

In your case, you worked an extra hour but ended up working 8 hours in total that day. (Lunch break is unpaid.) You should be paid the wages for all the hours you actually worked, but there is no need to be paid increased overtime wages because your working hours didn't exceed 8 hours.

If the rules of employment in your company provide increased overtime wages saying, "Workers who work beyond fixed working hours of the company shall be paid increased wages," then you are entitled to be paid overtime wages from the company.

The July issue of Konnichiwa Nagaoka, which will include detailed information about the Nagaoka Festival, will be published on July 27th at the latest. The reason for this delay is that we are usually able to get updates about the festival after mid-July. The editor would like to apologize for any inconveniences that may be caused by the delay.
